ALL POLAND TO Exclusive Power of a Fixed Purpose

> By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D. Secretary A Carrespondence Depart-ment, F edy Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT.-For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and him crucified.-I Cor. 2:2.

A fixed perpose does not drive out anything already in the heart of man, but it prevents other things from entering. With Paul, the deter mination to know nothing but Jesus Christ and him crucified prevent ed any other determination from entering into his work at Corinth. 1. Is it true wisdom to have a fixed religious purpose? We ar

of the dominance of the very spirit of democracy and the rule of the masses, as well as a time when there is little respect for authority. When you come to the realm of religion, it is said that we must approach its consideration with open minds; to have settled convictions would make us bigots and pharisees.

Was that the theory that actuated the prophets of the Old Testament, that actuated Jesus Christ as he taught among men, or that actuated the apostles? The positive teaching or Jeremiah brought on him the enmity of Israel, resulting in his most crue persecution. The uncompromising words of Jesus Christ sent him to the Cross, and when Paul faced the Cross and thought of the many things he might glory in, with intensest conviction he said, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." Here was no qualifi eation, no suggestion of a doubt, no peradventure. Precisely so has it always been with great leaders, and it is one of the saddest aspects of present religious teaching that they give the impression that it is not necessary to hold fixed purposes or views on doctrinal subjects. 2. Let us note that Paul's fixed pure pose was with reference to only one thing, everything else to be shut out. Would such a fixed purpose be wise for the Christian worker of today? Our Christian fathers and mother; were people of few theories; indeed, they were practically people of one thought. They permitted some great idea to obsess them, and everything else had to submit to that. They saw different aspects of the thought, but the thought was unique and alone.

Man must have his pole star and not several stars. But we must have good reasons for entertaining a fixed purpose. Paul evidently had good reasons for his ourpose, for he had seen the Lord by the gate of Damascus; he had spent three years in Arabia, doubtless making himself intelligent in the things of Christ; he had seen how the simple story of Christ crucified had moved hundreds, and probably thousands, under his own teaching to accept Christ: he had seen the religion of the dying Jesus spreading over Asia Minor and taking strong hold in Europe, and had experienced in his own life that old things had passed away, and that all things had become new-and he knew that all this came from Jesus Christ. 3. Paul's fixed purpose was-to know nothing among the Corinthians but Jesus Christ and him crucified. Christ crucified, everything must center at the Cross, everything in Christ's life and experience previous to his death must hav the Cross in view, and everything in Christ's after influence among men must go back to the Cross; it is on the Cross that the atonement for the sins of the world is found. As a distinguished commentator has said. "The atonement is the diamond pivot on which the Christian religion turns." There is nothing, unless we except Christ's glorious return for his people and as the Judge of all men, that so stirs the enemies of truth as the doctrine of the atone-

Jesus Christ and him erucifiedthat is the power of God unto salvation. The weakness of the preaching of so many ministers today can be explained by the fact that their sermons do not contain the dynamite of the Cross. Wherever that message is delivered, the slain of the Lord are many. That explained the conquest of Asia Miner and a large part of Europe in the first three centuries of the Christian era; that explained the phenomenal success of George Whitefield, Jonathan Edwards, Charles H. Spurgeon and every man of God the world through, who has been a successful winner of souls. Oh, that our young men who have the ministry in view would catch the vision! Then it would not take from thirty to fifty members of the Christian church to lead a single soul to Christ in the course of a year.

The nomination of Cox came as a surprise to the leaders as they had planned a campaign against McAdoo. They announced, however, that the issues would not be materially affected, the chief fight being centered on the League of Nations, with Democratic conduct of the war and reconstruction a secondary issue. It was also decided to frown upon any attempt to introduce the wet and dry question into the national campaign or to make the personality of the candidates a prominent factor. The announcement expressly states that no recognition of the soviet government is implied and that individuals and corporations trading with Russia must do so at their own risk and are not to expect assistance or also that the post office department will be unable to accept mail to soviet Russia and that goods cannot be forwarded by parcel post. Materials for war purposes continue under the ban and the state department will continue to refuse passports for Russia. The innouncement means in effect that persons or corporations desiring to trade with Russia may do so by dealing with soviet agents in the United States or in other countries. The state department warns American citizens against the risks incident to the acceptance of commodities or other values which may later be brought into question. It is explained that the United States does not recognize the validity of industrial or commercial concessions granted by an existing Russian authority. As a winding up of one of the probems growing out of the war, over $150,000,000 of property seized as enemy owned during the conflict, is now ready to be returned under qualifications provided for in the amendment to the trading with the enemy act, passed during the closing days of the last congress. Among those who may obtain the release of their property are American women who married allen enemies, enemy diplomats, allens who were interned, citizens of new nations created from enemy territory by the treaty of peace, women of allied or neutral countries who married enemy subjects, and Americans who were forced to remain in Germany during the war.
